DESCRIPTION: Cranks Creek, KY. Cranks is nestled in the heart of Appalachian coal country in south-eastern Kentucky. Coal mining is still the main source of employment for most of its residents, but that means there are plenty who don't have regular employment and barely get by. Nonprofit Cranks Creek Survival Center in Harlan County, which provides food, clothing, home repairs and other assistance to needy mountain residents. It's one of several small-scale efforts to attack the enormous problem of poverty in Appalachia. With the help of about 1,200 volunteers a year, they do home repairs, build ramps for disabled people and deliver food, clothing and other supplies. They get their money from donations by individuals, churches and schools

SERVICE PROJECTS and Ministry Partner: Various home repairs such as roofing, painting, building ramps, repairing floors, etc. Partnering with Cranks Creek survival Center.

Preparation Meetings: Part of the mission trip experience is the preparation of the youth and leaders who are participating. This is very important and we are asking for the commitment to attend these meetings when registering.
